

Competition Man, you look good

Dress2kill is ideal for the bespoke novice who is usually not only time-poor, but intimidated by the traditional, stuffy Savile Row idea of getting toggged-up from scratch. A consultant will measure you up in your home, or even your office, as well as take into account the kind of fabric, cut and style that will suit you. And the prices are less than scary too – British-made suits start from £350. The company is offering one Time Out-reading man a great exclusive prize – to have a suit made-to-measure and the chance to spend an afternoon being groomed with Tristan and Julian from the 'Queer Eye for the Straight Guy' TV programme. Hell, it's even chucking in a pair of shoes and a shirt to match, adding up to a total prize worth about a grand. To enter, send us 30 words explaining why you deserve a male makeover. Send your pleas to consume@timeout.com by Tuesday November 9.
